Please choose one: I was the Host OR I was the Speaker

1. On a scale of 1–5, with 5 being very valuable and 1 being not valuable at all, what was your impression of the tour in terms of:

- improving interactions among individual arctic researchers and institutions engaged in arctic research?
- developing productive collaborations among disciplines and between researchers and arctic communities?
- broadening students interest in arctic research in hopes to attract them to careers in science?
- broadening the general public's understanding of arctic research issues?
- overall impression of the tour?

2. Please list the institutions, departments, and organizations represented in the audience. Please also identify if underserved audiences were present.

3. Please include approximate amount of attendees from each audience for each event.

4. How was the lecture publicized? Please send any flyers produced to publicize the tour.

5. Was time allotted for informal exchange between the speaker and local faculty, students, and community? Please elaborate.

6. Is there anything you would like to do differently that would increase the effectiveness of future Arctic Visiting Speaker tours?

7. Do you have any suggestions for improving the Arctic Visiting Speakers Series?

8. Are there any comments you wish to convey to ARCUS or the National Science Foundation?

Thank you for participating in the Arctic Visiting Speakers Series and completing the evaluation form.

The Arctic Visiting Speakers Series is sponsored by the National Science Foundation Office of Polar Programs through the Arctic Research Consortium of the United States (ARCUS).
